eFiling, Case Management and Content/Document Management Solutions

In almost every state and county, courts and other agencies are asked to improve citizen services while, at the same time, maintain or reduce costs. Additionally, justice systems are challenged with the overwhelming task of securing, accessing and transporting a growing volume of case records. CGI, a national leader in providing services to justice systems, offers eFiling, case management and enterprise content management solutions branded as eRIMS to overcome these challenges. CGI's electronic records information management solutions (eRIMS) for Judiciary empowers courts with a common system that improves interoperability. Litigants, attorneys and other professionals are able to file cases electronically, perform electronic service, search and retrieve case documents immediately, eliminating the need for written requests and the physical transportation of documents.

eRIMS helps to efficiently manage and process all information and documents associated with justice systems. CGI's in-depth justice industry knowledge and extensive technology expertise offer unparalleled benefits to judiciary clients.

Backed by a satisfied client base, eRIMS for Judiciary delivers the following benefits:

- Eliminates the need for the physical routing of petitions, motions and other court documents and shortens the retrieval time from days to seconds
- Reduces paper processing and storage costs and the risk of lost or misfiled documents
- Results in faster, more accurate processing of cases and documents
- Streamlines procedures by routing cases electronically for processing
- Assures on-time processing by automatically tracking and providing electronic notification
- Eliminates the distribution of multiple copies of court orders to various court agencies by electronically distributing and submitting court orders with electronic signature capability facilitating record keeping
- Creates cross-departmental information sharing and increases data accuracy through the generation of electronic writs and automated returns
- Improves service to the taxpayer

Capabilities

CGI's eRIMS for Judiciary can be integrated with current justice software applications allowing users to take advantage of the improved case and document management capabilities. Records are secure and can be in "view only" format or restricted from public access. The solution's scalable architecture allows clients to manage large volumes of case records and other information simultaneously and also enables the solution to easily expand as new agencies, counties and additional documents are added.

Configurable to your information management needs, eRIMS for Judiciary includes the following features:

- Automated capture and indexing from hard copy, soft copy, fax or e-mail
- eFiling to control the input, editing and routing of electronically filed documents via the Internet
- Case management features such as case filings, parties/docket management, filing fees and payment capture, scheduling, evidence management, judgments and prosecutor case management
- Payment processing to calculate and collect filing fees, interface with a credit card processor and issue filing receipts
- Automated workflow to track and route documents, including electronic notifications and electronic signatures
- Automated document storage, management and retrieval
- Rules-based records management document retention and document purge
