

Since 1940, computers have continually evolved to meet the world's ever expanding needs and expectations. In 1976, CGI entered the IT services sector, which was still in relative infancy, with a passion for excellence and innovation, an unwavering commitment to its clients, and the dream of creating an environment in which colleagues enjoy working together and, as owners, contribute to building a company they can be proud of.

The
best ideas
grow in stimulating environments

Designed by Charles and Ray Eames in 1945, the Lounge Chair Wood was hailed by TIME magazine as the “Best Design of the 20th century,” due in good part to its longevity in providing functional comfort for virtually any user. Likewise, CGI adapts its service delivery to individual client needs, ensuring that each custom-designed solution remains the best fit for them.

Good
design
spans
time

Read, performed and admired by millions worldwide, Shakespeare's work is as alive today as it was in the 16th century. Similarly, CGI's culture has evolved with the understanding that success and durability must be based and built on quality.

Classics
are timeless

From day one, the essence of CGI's plan has remained unchanged. We are responding to the growth and complexity of our clients' business with our people, expertise and the ever-evolving solutions clients need to continue to win and grow. Their success is our success, as well as that of each individual member and shareholder.

Visionary
plans
evolve
with client
needs