“ CGI Advantage gives me everything I need, nothing I don't. ”

Dual-use ERP systems that are built for the private sector and overlaid with public sector features lack the functionality required to deliver value to government stakeholders.

We've built into our solution best practices from more than four decades of experience in implementing enterprise-level, mission-critical systems supporting thousands of public sector users and serving millions of citizens.

Based on that foundation of know-how, CGI Advantage has been reimagined and designed with commercially-inspired features that provide a simplified user experience and digital insights to enable timely and effective decision making. CGI Advantage is ready out of the box with the features and functionality that is:

- User friendly and intuitive – adapting to each person's role with minimal training and increasing productivity with a greater return on investment
- Smart – providing embedded analytics that empower users to make the right decisions faster as they perform tasks
- Unified – promoting seamless access across core ERP components, facilitating audits utilizing a single source that promotes transparency
- Flexible – offering a configurable role-based user experience that streamlines engagement and is tailored to the individual, both for daily and occasional users alike
- Powerful – supporting complex payroll and labor cost distribution mandates
- Mobile – allowing users to make decisions on the go through a mobile-first design that travels with them from desktop to tablet to mobile throughout their day
- Secure – working closely with international security associations and standards bodies to deliver security that is baked in, not bolted on
- Compliant – meeting federal government requirements for compliance mandates

Your organization benefits from a product roadmap that includes continued investment in new technologies and a modernized user experience, enabling new, innovative ways for you to meet citizen expectations, drive efficiency and grow capacity within your organization.

CGI offers the solution I want, implemented the way I want it.

Each organization must develop a transformation strategy that is right for them, based on budget, risk profile and timeframe to deliver value. We don't believe in a one-size-fits-all solution. CGI's flexible delivery options allow you to choose your own path.

CGI provides a range of options for how the system can be implemented and deployed. Based on the budget, needed features, user requirements and much more, your organization can choose to deploy the solution on-premise, using a Software as a Service (SaaS) model, or leveraging managed services using CGI's cloud or public cloud. CGI offers a traditional full scale structured implementation approach based on requirements, development and testing that may be needed to meet your unique requirements. For organizations looking for immediate and tangible results, CGI offers the ability to follow an agile, iterative implementation approach. For smaller organizations, CGI offers predefined configurations to streamline an implementation by providing best-practice solutions out of the box.

Each of these options provides you with the flexibility needed to adopt the solution at the pace, flexibility and budget your organization can support – it's your choice.

With CGI, you have a single point of accountability. Our solutions are built, implemented and managed by CGI experts bringing a powerful combination of domain, product and operational expertise coupled with decades of experience on what has worked best for similar public sector organizations. To support complex, mission-critical implementations, CGI brings the right mix of vision, design, implementation and operational oversight leadership. Your organization benefits from our:

- Ability to leverage agile development, allowing feedback along the way and course correction, if required
- Application of DevOps methodology to support operations
- Experience facilitating multilayered governance discussions and coordinating inter-agency communications
- Proven track record for business integration and organizational change management efforts

CGI Advantage connects me to a community of my peers.

Unlike private sector professionals constrained by competitive barriers to cooperation, the ability to share experiences and collaborate is a unique benefit enjoyed by their public sector counterparts.

As a CGI Advantage client, you are part of a user community like no other. Bonded as professionals with like-minded goals and aspirations exclusive to the public sector, our clients play an integral role in the evolution of the CGI Advantage solution by sharing best practices and initiatives that support collaboration. Our developers and consultants work hand-in-hand to forge deep relationships with clients that have lasted many years.

A client-led steering committee works collaboratively to validate our product roadmap, provide solution feedback and ensure we invest where it matters most – in innovative features and functions to benefit all our CGI Advantage clients.

CGI clients benefit from unparalleled access to an engaged community of practitioners who gather annually at our CGI Advantage Forum and stay connected throughout the year to share best practices and lessons learned. For four decades, CGI has fostered innovation and collaboration with our client community, always with an eye towards the future.

“One of the most powerful pieces of this user community is CGI’s willingness to share with us the responsibility for designing the systems that we use.”
