

Instant, cheap and secure account to account payments

What is Ordo?

Ordo is a simple and secure way of requesting a payment from someone, resulting in payment by real-time bank transfer.

What is our role?

We built the Ordo platform and now run the solution providing our usual high level of security, resilience and service management. We work with organisations to integrate the Ordo solution into your existing environments, providing API integration and orchestration services either using our own tooling or yours. We work with you to develop the specific business case appropriate to your organisation, including running proof of value projects so that you can see the benefits Ordo brings in your own environment.

Who would use Ordo?

- Billers – to send bills that would usually be paid by card, cash or cheque. You can opt to allow part payment of bills or request to extend the due date, or not. You are in control
- IPayers – anyone who needs to pay a bill. There is no App to download (unless you want to) there is no registration and security is handled by your own bank
- Shoppers – you can use Ordo at the checkout, via a website or at the till using a QR code.

How much does it cost?

Ordo charges the biller 20p per transition compared to 1%-3% of the transaction charge for cards. So on a £200 payment you, the biller, can save up to £5.80. For the payer it's free.

How can I use it?

Integration to your systems is via a simple API. For low volume billers requests can even be sent manually by your staff, whenever required, with no integration. Payment is made by existing mechanisms such as Faster Payments with the request being made through open banking.

Why would I use Ordo?

As a biller: the top 3 reasons include:

- It's a flat fee, typically cheaper than card fees
- The payments reach your bank immediately (rather than a couple of days)
- There is no charge back possibility

As a payer:

- No need to type in card details and no additional verification details (handled by your bank)

When is it available?

Now! Ordo has been live for over a year and has processed millions of pounds of payments.
