

Door James

Environmental footprint

Managing your environmental footprint

Door James is not just a useful office management tool, but also a source of information to help you make better decisions.

Today, it is important for companies to do their part in reducing environmental footprint and Door James is here to help address that.

Using your space efficiently

Door James enables you to see how much of your office is actually being used. Are certain areas used at all? When is it busy and when is it quiet? Is there a weekly or daily trend?

Depending on usage statistics, you can choose to repurpose your facilities and reduce energy waste by turning lights and equipment off earlier if there are no more occupants. In the future, Door James also aims to automate this process for you.

Improving your environmental awareness

Door James offers several opportunities to reduce your carbon footprint through easy-to-use solutions.

The new normal introduced us to a hybrid working model which offers employees more flexibility in choosing an ideal work set up. Giving your employees the choice to work from home enables you to reduce office space, energy costs and consumption.

One of Door James' main functions is the bookable assets we create specifically for your office. These assets do not need to be a desk or room. It can also be e-scooters, electric pool cars and charging stations.

Car sharing, inter-site transport and staff buses can also be included and booked via Door James. You can offer different transportation methods to help your employees reduce carbon footprint and develop a sustainable mindset.

A 100% carbon neutral solution

Door James is hosted on Google Cloud, which is 100% carbon neutral today and aiming to use only carbon-free energy in the future.

Door James ensures that we only reduce your environmental footprint.
