

Agile Development Teams

Amplifying your business strategy to accelerate your digital transformation

Flexible and skilled teams that rapidly increase in-house skills and capabilities. Our world-class agile teams and coaches augment, supplement, and prepare our clients' in-house teams.

What is it all about?

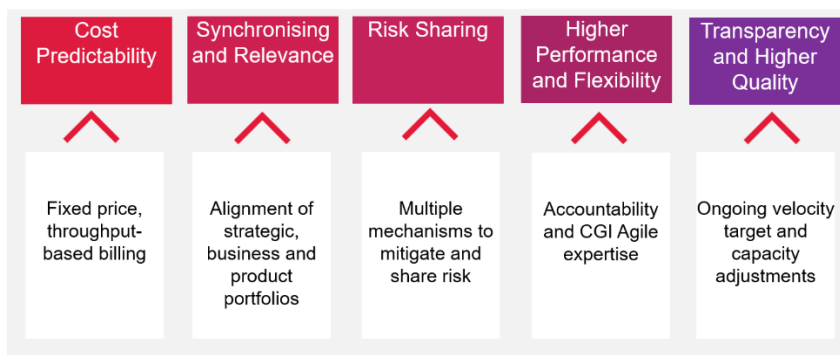

Organisations have typically been designed for stability and control, which has served them well during a period when the pace of change was less frequent, and their future often shaped internally. This is especially the case in regulated industries.

However, we understand that this has changed with the power of the customer voice, the disaggregation of information and the increased impact of lower priced and greater connected technology.

Today, your organisation need to be designed for change and speed, and is driven more by external signals (like the customer) and need to adopt new ways of organising, managing and executing, that are more human-focused to leverage people's innovation, creativity and collaboration talents. With this in mind, it's time to bring in our agile development teams!

The teams

The below chart shows why our agile teams bring you more value and subsequently help drive and achieve business agility and better budget forecasting.

Cross-functional teams

All members of our teams have multiple, complementary skills.

All of the team members love a challenge and they also always share their knowledge as they go along.

All of the following skills, and more, are available within our teams.

Why us?

It's all about our people, and we have also developed expertise in all agile frameworks to better serve customers.

Our pragmatic, value-based, end-to-end agile transformation framework encompasses the strategic consulting as well as hands-on practitioners, trainers and accelerators needed to design and implement successful transformations. By putting people first, we enable teams to adapt their organisational culture, to adopt the right solutions and create the right environment.

Partner with us

With agile teams, we deliver with an approach centred on business success. Partnering with us tackles talent shortages as well as fast technology evolution by:

- Bringing Strategy into our partnership - while supplying the right talent is our top priority, we keep in mind the overall goal of organisations. Our agile teams utilise your vision, mission and strategy to formalise, prioritise and execute product development with better results
- Syncing technology and knowledge - for product development projects to succeed, it is crucial for all involved to speak the same language. Our teams engage with clients to enable them to stay on top of the latest technology as well as agile commitments and models. Not only increasing success ratios, but laying the ground for further innovative discussions
- Increasing value, autonomy and risk sharing – we deliver, high-performing, fully autonomous teams, focussed on business success as the ultimate indicator of value, quality and predictability.
