Automating global hazard communication

Regulations covering the life cycle of chemicals are subject to different regulatory schemes that are dependent on national or regional approaches. This poses a significant risk for organizations that need to manage large quantities of data, maintain compliance, compete in an increasingly global marketplace and improve the transparency of information in their supply chains. CGI's ProSteward360 is a trusted solution, underpinned by extensive regulatory consulting expertise that helps organizations automate hazard communication to satisfy these requirements in a cost-effective and efficient way.

Digitization of hazard communication

ProSteward360 is an end-to-end solution that helps organizations of all sizes address hazard communication challenges by automating processes and operations while reducing costs. The solution helps product stewards meet global compliance obligations by digitizing harmonized processes across geographies and diverse product lines, resulting in improved data quality and consistency. Customizable workflows create sustainable processes to support compliance in new geographies, enabling product stewards to support opportunities in new markets.

How ProSteward360 works

ProSteward360 facilitates sustainable practices to support product stewardship throughout the product life cycle. The solution enables organizations to manage a wide range of chemical, regulatory, toxicology, product, facility, and location data, as well as create, manage and distribute hazard communication documents. Customizable workflows and dashboards simplify the user experience and increase operational efficiency throughout the supply chain.
