C2IX mobile – action on the go

Comprehensive support for civil-military deployments in multinational networks

Support of civil-military management processes is a core requirement particularly for multi-national and department-wide deployments of armed forces.
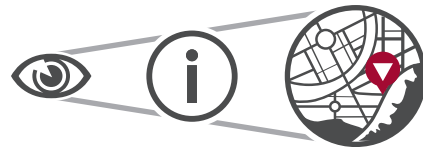

In such a scenario, the reconnaissance team collects relevant information on-site that is analyzed and validated on return to their home country and made available to a broader user group. If an online connection exists, the analysis and validation can be done simultaneously with the data collection. Further military management processes can be planned based on this information. With C2IX mobile, CGI now offers a solution to support teams on-site. C2IX mobile seamlessly integrates in the existing service environments and ensures full interoperability with the existing technical and management information systems.
